Dear FEC:

The following responses are provided in reference to the FEC's three RFAs issued February 10, 2015 to Thomas for Congress.

RE: AMENDED OCTOBER QUARTERLY REPORT (8/3/14 - 9/30/14), RECEIVED 10/23/14

1. The October quarterly was amended to show an additional $49,815 in line 10 debt that was not included on the original October quarterly report. The debts added in the amendment filed 10/23/14 included the following:

- A. $4,207.50 to Mock & Associates (3/31/14, added to the April 15 report)
- B. $2,507.50 to Mock & Associates (5/5/14, added to the July 15 report)
- C. $6,560 to Riffsoft LLC (4/1/14, added to the July 15 report)
- D. $14,040 to Riffsoft LLC (4/11/14, added to the July 15 report)
- E. $15,000 to JC Kinchen LLC (9/30/14, added to the October 15 report)
- F. $7,500 to JC Kinchen LLC (9/30/14, added to the October 15 report)

After the October 15 report was originally filed, the campaign noticed that these debts had been left off the report. After reviewing committee records, it appears there was some confusion arising after the campaign's difficult transition away from CISCO as the campaign's general political/strategy consultant. The transition, and the uncertainty of the campaign's future, caused confusion among the campaign's vendors. It appears that some vendors held their invoices during the transition due to the confusion. After the campaign was up and running again, campaign staff requested that vendors re-submit their invoices to ensure that we had them all in our records. However, in reviewing the records after the original 10/15 report was filed, we discovered that the Riffsoft LLC and Mock & Associates invoices reflected here had been received as of the dates now reported, and thus they were added to the appropriate reporting period.

2. Missing 48-Hour Reports. While the committee reported the two contributions at issue from William Clark and Gerald McCoy on the regular October quarterly report, it appears the 48-hour reports were not filed. These were among the contributions received by a campaign fundraising firm on behalf of the campaign. The fundraising firm would send email alerts to the campaign of large contributions during the 48-hour notice period. It appears the emails regarding these two contributions were overlooked by the campaign. Later in the campaign, the committee added additional individuals to the email distribution list to ensure that all relevant emails would be timely reviewed.

3. Item '3' in the RFA identifies several contributors for whom the committee did not receive the requisite employment information. The committee is filing an amended report to disclose the missing information.

The RFA also inquired about contributions the committee reported from 'R. Moore' of Lynden, Washington. Mr. Moore only provided his first initial, and a search of FEC records reveals that he apparently uses his first initial as a matter of course. There are several other entries, across multiple years to multiple committees, reported from 'R. Moore' of Lynden, Washington. The Committee has not made a follow-up request for Mr. Moore's full first name within the requisite timeline; the Committee will therefore deal with this contribution according to the FEC's instructions.

The RFA also inquired about the contribution reported as from 'John and Talisha Davis' in the amount of $250. This contribution was made online, and the contributors provided both John and Talisha's names in the contributor name field. They are a married couple. The committee will amend the report to attribute one half each to John and Talisha as husband and wife.
